INTRODUCTION

Since the issue of the Directory of International Statistics in 1975¹, there has been a significant expansion in the statistical publication activities of the United Nations Statistical Office, regional commissions, specialized agencies and other international organizations. New publications have been issued and additional statistical series have been introduced. The level of computerization has been expanded so that a vastly increased amount of statistical data is now maintained and in many cases is available to users in machine-readable form.

The present issue of the Directory (in two volumes) has been prepared (a) to make available to users of international statistics up-to-date information on the statistical series and methodological guide-lines that are available and (b) to stimulate and further facilitate the efforts of the international organizations towards continued co-ordination of their data collection, processing and publishing activities. The Directory is prepared through a joint effort of the United Nations Statistical Office, the statistical divisions of the regional commissions, specialized agencies and other international organizations.

This publication is the latest in a series of *Directories*² and lists of series³ issued since 1951 and is a continuation of the specific response of the United Nations system to Economic and Social Council resolution 1306 (XLIV) of 31 May 1968. That resolution, recommended to the Economic and Social Council by the Statistical Commission, aimed at achieving a judicious balance among international statistical programmes, both as regards the emphasis to be accorded to various subjects and regarding the regional activities in statistics of the United Nations and the specialized agencies. In particular, the Council in this resolution requested the Secretary-General of the United Nations, in co-operation with the executive heads of the specialized agencies, "to take steps to promote arrangements to ensure the development of an integrated and co-ordinated international statistical programme, based on longer-term planning... thus contributing to the efficiency of national statistical systems in both developed and developing countries, as well as to the effective use of resources at the international level".

Volume I of the present issue contains in part one listing of the statistical series compiled by the organizations of the United Nations system and some non-

United Nations organizations active in international statistics. This includes references to the organizations which collect the data from countries, the publications in which the data can be found, the frequency of the series and an indication of whether the series is maintained in machine-readable form. The series are listed by subject-matter. Part two presents an inventory of the machine-readable data bases of economic and social statistics by subject and by organization. It includes information on the types of statistics contained in them and the technical descriptions of the computer files. The information is linked via subject-matter codes and data base identification numbers to the statistical series in part one of the volume. The information included in this Directory relates to the years 1976 and 1977 for part one and 1978 for part two. However, there are instances in which the data are more or less recent, as indicated in the text, where appropriate.

Volume II of the present Directory is in preparation. It contains information on the organization, responsibilities and functioning of the statistical services of the United Nations Statistical Office, regional commissions, specialized agencies and other international organizations. It also includes information on internationally recommended standards, concepts, definitions and classifications for statistical use.

INTERNATIONAL STATISTICAL SERIES

INTERNATIONAL STATISTICAL SERIES

I. EXPLANATORY NOTES

This part of Volume I of the Directory contains a detailed picture of the central portion of the output of the international statistical system: the statistical data regularly furnished by the organizations of the United Nations system and some non-United Nations organizations active in international statistics.

For each statistical series, the following information is given: the name of the series, the name of the international organizations furnishing it, the name of the publications containing the series, the frequency of the series and the data base number if the series is in machine-readable form.

Technical notes are included to guide the reader in the use of the list of series. The abbreviations used are listed, followed by the list of series in subject-matter order. Descriptions of the recurrent statistical publications which regularly furnish the series follow the list of series.

Most of the information in this part of the present volume refers to 1976 and 1977. For part two, information refers to later years. Attempts have been made to present identical data base information in parts one and two.

INTERNATIONAL STATISTICAL SERIES

II. TECHNICAL NOTES

The list of international statistical series was first issued in 1951 in response to recommendations by the Statistical Commission and was revised once in 1955. For purposes of the first edition of the Directory of International Statistics issued in 1975, the list was extensively expanded, restructured and updated to furnish a comprehensive catalogue of the statistical series published by the United Nations system. In this issue, the list has been further expanded and brought up to date and also contains statistical series published by some non-United Nations organizations active in international statistics.

A. The classification

For the most part, the classification of international statistical series that appeared in the first issue of the Directory has been maintained in the present volume. Effort has been taken to develop new and expand existing divisions of the classification (for example, income distribution and consumption and social security statistics, environment statistics etc.). The purpose of this classification is to serve as a structure for a list of statistical series collected by the United Nations Statistical Office, the statistical divisions of the regional commissions, specialized agencies and other intergovernmental organizations active in international statistics. The classification is useful for many other purposes as well (for example to classify statistical programmes etc.).

The classification has the following major divisions:

1. SOCIAL, DEMOGRAPHIC AND RELATED STATISTICS
 - 1.1 Social services
 - 1.2 Demographic statistics
 - 1.3 Housing statistics
 - 1.4 Labour statistics
 - 1.5 Education, science and technology, culture and mass communication statistics
 - 1.6 Health statistics
 - 1.7 Distribution of income and consumption and social security statistics
 - 1.8 Other social, demographic and related statistics
2. ECONOMIC STATISTICS
 - 2.1 National accounts and balances
 - 2.2 Agriculture, forestry and fishery statistics
 - 2.3 Industrial and construction statistics
 - 2.4 Trade statistics

- 2.5 Transport, storage, communication and tourism statistics
 - 2.6 Finance statistics
 - 2.7 Price statistics
 - 2.8 Industrial property statistics
 - 2.9 Other economic statistics
3. OTHER STATISTICS
 - 3.1 Environment statistics
 - 3.2 Statistics on international organizations
 - 3.3 Other statistics, n.e.c.

B. Statistical series

Each of the two-digit divisions in social, demographic and related statistics, economic statistics and other statistics has been disaggregated to varying degrees. To give one example, 2.3 Industrial and construction statistics is subdivided according to major divisions 2, 3, 4 and 5 of the International Standard Industrial Classification of All Economic Activities (ISIC). Each of the major divisions is further subdivided by industries and within industries by products (over 500 individual products are shown). A discussion of aggregation in the classification will be given later in these notes.

At the most disaggregated level of the classification, the following information is provided for each statistical series:

- (a) Organizations furnishing the statistical series;
- (b) Publications in which the statistical series are contained;
- (c) Frequency of the statistical series (not necessarily the same as the frequency of the publication in which it appears); and
- (d) Whether or not the statistical series is in machine-readable form.

To give an example of the type of information provided in the list, consider the statistical series "Marriage rates", from demographic statistics. It is furnished by the United Nations Statistical Office and included in the Statistical Office publications: Demographic Yearbook (UNDYB), Compendium of Social Statistics (UNSOCL), Statistical Yearbook (UNSYB) and Monthly Bulletin of Statistics (UNMBS). In the case of the first three publications, the data are annual; in the case of the last, both annual and monthly. Therefore, the following entries would apply for the series:

Series description (Classification)	Organi- zation	Publication	Series Frequency Data Base
Marriage rates	UNSO	UNDYB	A
	UNSO	UNSOCL	A
	UNSO	UNSYB	A
	UNSO	UNMBS	A
	UNSO	UNMBS	M

To give another example, this time from national accounts, the statistical series "Expenditure on the gross domestic product in purchasers' values, at current prices" is furnished by the United Nations Statistical Office. It is published in the Statistical Office's Yearbook of National Accounts Statistics (UNNAYB), Statistical Yearbook (UNSYB) and Monthly Bulletin of Statistics (UNMBS); the data are annual. Therefore, in this case, the following entries would apply:

Series description (Classification)	Organi- zation	Publication	Series Frequency Data Base
Expenditure on the gross domestic product in purchasers' values, at current prices	UNSO	UNNAYB	A
	UNSO	UNMBS	A

In both examples, only the United Nations Statistical Office publications were cited. However, both series are published by other organizations as well. For example, the IMF in its International Financial Statistics (IMFIFS) and ECA in its African Statistical Yearbook (ECASYB) include "Expenditure on the gross domestic product in purchasers' values, at current prices". IMF publishes data on an annual and quarterly basis and ECA on an annual basis. Assuming that these were the only other organizations reporting the series, the information would appear as follows:

Series description (Classification)	Organi- zation	Publication	Series Frequency Data Base
Expenditure on the gross domestic product in purchasers' values, at current prices	UNSO	UNNAYB	A
	UNSO	UNSYB	A
	UNSO	UNMBS	A
	UNSO	ECASYB	A
	UNSO	IMFIFS	A
	IMF	IMFIFS	Q

It is important to note here that, even though ECA publishes the series in its African Statistical Yearbook (ECASYB), the organization furnishing the series is the United Nations Statistical Office; therefore under "Organization" UNSO appears and under "Publication", ECASYB. The United Nations Statistical Office also supplies the annual data appearing in International Financial Statistics (IMFIFS). Therefore UNSO appears under "Organization" and IMFIFS under "Publication". Finally, since IMF collects its own quarterly national accounts information, IMF is listed under "Organization".

C. Data bases

In part two of the present volume, detailed information on data bases of economic and social statistics is provided concerning their general content and technical nature. In the list of international statistical series, the constituent parts of the data bases, i.e. statistical series, are identified. To continue the three examples given above, the annual series "Marriage rates" is maintained, in machine-readable form by the United Nations Statistical Office in its demographic data base while the monthly series is not maintained. For purposes of this volume of the Directory, that data base has been identified as UNSO-1. The fact that the annual series is in machine-readable form is shown in the list of series in the following manner:

INTERNATIONAL STATISTICAL SERIES

Series description (Classification)	Organi- zation	Publication	Series Frequency Data Base
Marriage rates	UNSO	UNDYB	A 1
	UNSO	UNSYB	A 1
	UNSO	UNMBS	A 1
	UNSO	UNMBS	M

To identify the data base which contains the series, it is necessary to link "Organization" with "Data base", i.e. UNSO-1.

In the second example, concerning "Expenditure on the gross domestic product in purchasers' values, at current prices", the annual data are also in machine-readable form and are contained in UNSO-2, the national accounts data base:

Series description (Classification)	Organi- zation	Publication	Series Frequency Data Base
Expenditure on the gross domestic product in purchasers' values, at current prices	UNSO	UNNAYB	A 2
	UNSO	UNSYB	A 2
	UNSO	UNMBS	A 2

The third example, also in terms of the series "Expenditure on the gross domestic product in purchasers' values, at current prices" has, in addition to the Statistical Office, two other sources: the International Financial Statistics (IMFIFS) of IMF and the African Statistical Yearbook (ECASYB) of ECA:

Series description (Classification)	Organi- zation	Publication	Series Frequency Data Base
Expenditure on the gross domestic product in purchasers' values, at current prices	UNSO	UNNAYB	A 2
	UNSO	UNSYB	A 2
	UNSO	UNMBS	A 2
	UNSO	ECASYB	A 2,8
	UNSO	IMFIFS	A 2,1
	IMF	IMFIFS	Q 1

ECA is furnished these particular data for its African Statistical Yearbook (ECASYB) by the United Nations Statistical Office (UNSO-2) and also maintains the data in its own national accounts data base, ECA-8. Hence the "2,8" entry under "data base". Here the "2" is linked with the organization furnishing the data as previously, and the "8" is linked to the organization publishing the data. The same is true of the annual data published by IMF.

In some instances, data which are published by one organization, and maintained by them in machine-readable form, are furnished by organizations without computerized data bases. The following example from labour statistics is relevant:

Series description (Classification)	Organi- zation	Publication	Series Frequency Data Base
Economically active population in construction	ILO	ILOYLS	A
	ILO	ECASYB	A ,6

The ILO collects the series "Economically active population in construction" and publishes it in its Year Book of Labour Statistics (ILOYLS); ECA also publishes that series in its African Statistical Yearbook (ECASYB). No machine-readable data base containing those data is maintained by the ILO. However, these data are maintained in the ECA demographic and social statistics data base, ECA-6. In order to make this clear, the data base "6" is shown linking the data base to the organization publishing the data, as in the example above, rather than to the organization furnishing the data. Were it shown as "6" only, the correct interpretation would be that it is ILO data base "6", which is not the case.

Finally, the classification itself may be such that one organization may show in its publication two data base numbers for one series description. For example, in national accounts statistics, "input-output tables" are shown as a sub-classification of "System of National Accounts (SNA)". The Economic Commission for Europe (ECE) maintains two data bases with this information; one in 22 industry groups for years around 1959 and the other in 47, 27 and 14 industry groups for years around 1965. Under "data base" this condition is shown by using a hyphen, 1-2.

D. Format

Some items in the list of series are printed with their classification numbers. These items are structural in nature and in many cases do not have any statistical data associated directly with them. The first item following a numbered (structural) item is indented from the left margin and represents the next lower level of classification. Further indentations indicate lower levels of the classification. When items are structural in nature and in addition have statistical data associated directly with them, the item is repeated at the left margin without its number, it being understood that the number is the same. For an example see 2.4.2.1 Total imports and exports (quantity and value).

E. Some aspects of the publications cited

It is important to set out the following in terms of the publications used as sources in the list of series:

- (a) When a publication is given as a source for a particular series, that series is available for more than one and usually for many countries.
- (b) Publications containing series which are subject to a rotation plan of publication are cited as sources. For example, while "Population of the world" has appeared in each issue of the United Nations Demographic Yearbook (UNDYB), the series on "Literate population by sex and age" was included only in 1948, 1955, 1963, 1964 (data not available in 1963), 1971 and 1973. In the United Nations Monthly Bulletin of Statistics (UNMBS), to give another example, "Index numbers of world industrial production" are included in the February, May, August and November issues only.

- (c) Publications issued by the United Nations Statistical Office, by the statistical divisions of the specialized agencies and other intergovernmental organizations are world-wide in their coverage, while publications issued by the regional commissions are limited to primarily reporting statistics on the countries in their respective regions. Series may be contained on one or two countries outside the region for comparison purposes. Therefore, while statistics on "Employment" can be found for all reporting countries in the ILO Yearbook of Labour Statistics (ILOYLS), the ECLA Statistical Yearbook for Latin America (ECLASYB) would contain such statistics for the countries in the ECLA region, the Statistical Yearbook for Asia and the Pacific (ESCAPSYB) for ESCAP countries etc.

F. Aggregation

Against each of the items under a given heading of the classification of international statistical series is shown the sources which publish the data.

In most cases the item descriptions are the same as series titles contained in the publications listed. There are cases, however, where item descriptions encompass a number of statistical series. This is especially so in 2.1 National Accounts and Balances and in 2.4.2 External Trade. Therefore, when a source is consulted in these areas, the user may find:

- (a) Statistics which correspond to the item description;
- (b) Statistics which correspond to some detail of the item description; or
- (c) Statistics on both.

Publications which are chiefly devoted to the type of statistics sought, of course, usually contain both. For example, the United Nations Yearbook of National Accounts Statistics (UNNAYB) contains the statistical series "Gross domestic product by kind of economic activity", including series on GDP in agriculture, forestry and fishery, mining and quarrying, manufacturing etc. But the classification and list show only that GDP for "Industries" are published; individual industries are not itemized.

Publications which are not chiefly concerned with the type of statistics sought, e.g. ECLA Statistical Yearbook for Latin America (ECLASYB), may only provide statistics on some unspecified item of detail. Nonetheless, they too are cited as sources for the classification item description.

G. Future work

Work on the classification and list of international statistical series is a continuing activity of the United Nations Statistical Office.

IV. BIBLIOGRAPHY AND DESCRIPTION OF RECURRENT PUBLICATIONS

This section lists and describes the recurrent publications of the United Nations system of organizations, and selected other intergovernmental organizations. It contains descriptions of those recurrent publications which exclusively furnish statistical data (bulletins, yearbooks etc.) as well as the recurrent publications which contain in some part important statistical data (surveys, reports etc.) The publications are arranged by organization.

Many of the recurrent publications contained in this bibliography are identified as sources in the preceding list of international statistical series. These are identified by including the abbreviations for the titles used in the list.

A. United Nations

1. Statistical Office

Monthly Bulletin of Statistics (UNMBS) (with Supplement)

The Bulletin provides monthly statistics on 73 subjects from over 200 countries and territories, together with special tables illustrating important economic developments. Quarterly data for significant world and regional aggregates are also prepared regularly for the Bulletin. Annual figures for most tables cover seven or eight years and monthly figures refer to the most recent eighteen-month period. Published since 1947.

Statistical Yearbook (UNSYB) (with Supplement)

The Yearbook is a comprehensive compilation of international statistics relating to a wide range of economic and social subjects, including: population; manpower; agricultural, mineral and manufacturing production; construction; energy; trade; transport; communications; consumption; balance of payments; wages and prices; national accounts; finance; development assistance; health; housing; education, science and technology and culture. Published since 1949.

The Supplement to the Statistical Yearbook and the Monthly Bulletin of Statistics provides, more detailed definitions and explanatory notes for the statistical series published in the Yearbook and the Bulletin than can be included in the footnotes to the tables in these publications. In presenting these descriptions, particular reference is made to scope, coverage, methods of compilation, definitions and other factors affecting the international comparability of statistics. The Supplement is published from time to time, the most recent edition issued in 1979.

World Statistics in Brief (Statistical Pocketbook) (UNPKTBK)

This publication is an annual compilation of basic international statistics. The first part has a separate page for each of the States Members of the United Nations and Switzerland, showing important and frequently consulted statistical indicators. The second part contains demographic, economic and social statistics for the world as a whole, selected regions of the world and major countries.

Demographic Yearbook (UNDYB)

The Yearbook is a compendium of international demographic statistics for over 220 countries and areas. It is designed to supply basic statistical data for demographers, economists, sociologists and public health workers. Under the cyclical rotation plan of publication, a different field of demographic statistics receives intensive treatment each year. It contains basic data on area, density, population and population growth rates, natality, mortality, expectation of life, nuptiality, marriage, divorce and international migration. Published since 1948.

Compendium of Social Statistics (UNSOCL)

This compendium is issued with the collaboration of United Nations, the ILO, FAO, UNESCO and WHO. Issues have been published in 1963, 1968 and 1980. Statistical tables include: population and vital statistics; health conditions; food consumption and nutrition; housing and community facilities; education and literacy; cultural activities and communications; labour force and conditions of employment; income and expenditure; consumer prices, agricultural population, resources and output; land use; social security; refugees; energy and environment.

Population and Vital Statistics Report (UNPOP)

This publication updates population and vital statistics for over 200 countries and areas of the world, on a quarterly basis, and population aggregates for the world and each continent, annually. Included for each country are (1) results of the latest population census; (2) the latest official estimate of population, irrespective of date; (3) a mid-year population estimate for a fixed (recent) year; and (4) the latest birth, death and infant mortality statistics. The reference date of the fixed-year population estimate for each country, and territory, as well as the aggregate estimate for the world and each continent, is updated in the 1 July issue. Published since 1949.

Yearbook of National Accounts Statistics (UNNAYB)

The Yearbook is published in two volumes. Volume I, entitled "Individual country data", includes internationally comparable information for more than 130 countries and areas. Country estimates are shown, wherever available, both in terms of present System of National Accounts (SNA), and the former SNA, for each of the following subjects: the gross domestic product expenditure; national income and national disposable income; capital transactions of the nation; gross domestic product by kind of economic activity; domestic factor incomes; supply and disposition of commodities; government final consumption expenditure; private final consumption expenditure; composition of gross capital formation; distribution of income; distribution of capital flows; income and outlay and capital transactions by corporations, institutions, governments and by households; and external transactions. For the countries with centrally planned economies, estimates are shown in terms of the System of Material Product Balances (MPS).

Volume II "International tables", contains internationally comparable information in 11 tables of processed data. Published since 1958.

Yearbook of International Trade Statistics (UNTRD)

This publication provides basic information on individual countries' external trade in terms of the overall trends in current value as well as in volume and price, trading partners and individual commodities imported and exported. It is published in two volumes.

Volume I, Trade by Country, contains detailed data for individual countries and basic summary tables showing, inter alia, the contribution of the trade of each country to the trade of its region and of the world, analysing the flow of trade between countries and describing the fluctuations of the prices at which goods moved internationally. The summary tables are: world trade by region, country or area; world trade by commodity classes and regions; exports of market economies: current values, unit value and quantum indices; index numbers by commodity classes; index numbers by regions: quantum, unit value and terms of trade; index numbers by country or area; structure of world trade by regions and important commodity classes; annual average rate of growth by commodity classes and by regions; trends in world trade compared with trends in population and production.

Volume II, Trade by Commodity; Commodity Matrix Tables provides, (a) special commodity tables showing total world imports and exports of commodities at the group level of the SITC by countries; (b) commodity (also in group level) by country trade matrixes for a recent year. Published since 1951.

Commodity Trade Statistics (UNCTRD)

Provides quarterly and annual data for countries in terms of the 625 sub-groups of the Standard International Trade Classification (SITC). Data for each reporting country are published together. The data are shown in reporting-country-by-commodity-by-partner-country order. They have been published in this form since 1962. Also available in microfiche.

World Trade Annual (and Supplement)

This is a special series published by Walker and Company (New York) by agreement with the Statistical Office. World Trade Annual presents, in five volumes, details of the flow of trade in more than 1,300 items of the Standard International Trade Classification (SITC) reported by each of 24 principal reporting countries, covering over 80 per cent of world trade. Value data are in thousands of United States dollars and quantity figures in metric units are also shown, where available and meaningful. Total imports and total exports by each reporter in each commodity are shown as well as the analysis by trading partners. Besides the fully detailed data, figures are also shown at four of the stages of summarization made available by SITC; i.e., for the 625 sub-groups, 82 selected groups, the 56 divisions, the 10 sections and for total imports and exports. In the World Trade Annual data are in commodity order for users interested in individual commodities. In the five volumes of the Supplement, for users interested in individual countries, data are presented in geographical order of more than 154 partner countries which trade with the 24 reporting countries. Published since 1963.

World Energy Supplies (UNENRGY)

This study provides data for the current five-year period, covering the principal elements of production, import, export, bunkers, stock change and apparent consumption of commercial energy for nearly 200 countries and areas. Preliminary data on the production of primary fossil fuels (hard coal, lignite and brown coal, peat for fuel, crude petroleum, natural gas liquids and natural gas) are presented for the most recent year. Supplementary series of monthly and quarterly data on production of energy may be found in the Monthly Bulletin of Statistics.

The principal objective of the series is to provide a global framework of comparable data on long-term trends and recent developments in the supply of all commercial forms of energy, as a basis for the examination of the characteristics of energy supply and demand. Data are provided on both primary and secondary forms of energy in the interests of coverage as comprehensive as possible of the total availability of energy commodities. Four tables in matrix form present international trade flows in hard coal, in crude petroleum, in natural gas and in electricity between principal exporter and importer countries and between regions. Published since 1952.

Yearbook of Industrial Statistics (UNYBIND)

This is a two-volume annual series, introduced in 1967, which presents annual compilations of general industrial statistics.

7. United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD)

Handbook of International Trade and Development Statistics (UNCTADHBK)

The Handbook is intended to provide a complete basic collection of statistical data relevant to the analysis of the problems of world trade and development, for the use of the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development, as well as government officials, university and other research specialists, and others interested in these subjects. The publication includes: value of world trade by regions and countries; volume, unit value and terms of trade index numbers by regions, commodity prices; network of world trade: summary by selected regions of origin and destination and structure of imports and exports by selected commodity groups; import and export for individual countries; financial flows, aid and balance of payments of developing countries; some basic indicators of development; and special studies.

The Handbook, while largely based on existing international and national sources (such as statistical publications and computerized data banks) provides a unique compilation that wherever possible, data are presented in an analytical way so as to facilitate their interpretation, through the use of rank-orderings, growth rates, percentage shares, and other special calculations. Also, a number of the series shown represent estimates based on detailed research and analysis.

In addition, every effort is made to take account of all available international sources in order to provide as complete a coverage of individual countries as possible in the various tabulations. The Handbook is normally published every four years and a supplement is published on an annual basis to provide, on an interim basis, revised and updated versions of the Handbook.

8. International Narcotics Control Board (INCB)

Statistics on Narcotic Drugs (and) Maximum Levels of Opium Stocks

This annual publication traces the licit movement of narcotic drugs from production of the raw material to consumption of the finished product, shows stocks held and quantities reported as seized in the illicit traffic. Statistics are shown for the last available and the preceding four years.

Among the substances falling under the International Conventions on Narcotic Drugs, the following appear separately in view of the importance of their production, trade and utilization: (a) opium, opium alkaloids and their derivatives; morphine, thebaine, hydrocodone, oxycodone, codeine, dihydrocodeine, ethylmorphine, pholcodine; (b) poppy straw and concentrate of poppy straw; (c) coca leaves and cocaine; (d) synthetic narcotic drugs: pethidine, methadone and diphenoxylate. Each of these substances is dealt with individually in separate tables or columns.

With regard to the other derivatives of opium alkaloids and other synthetic narcotic drugs, total manufacture and total consumption of each of these drugs are shown in other tables. Wherever the production or consumption of one of these drugs, whether a derivative of opium alkaloids or a synthetic narcotic drug, reaches one kilogram in at least one country, the drug appears in these tables.

Statistical information on cannabis is presented in the narrative part of this document.

Estimated World Requirements of Narcotic Drugs and Estimates of World Production of Opium

This document presents statistical data annually for countries and the world requirements of narcotic drugs; estimates of opium production; and area of poppy cultivation for the purpose of harvesting opium. The estimates are furnished by governments or established by the Board in the absence of specific data provided by the government.

The publication is updated by a series of monthly Supplements containing amendments to the estimates.

Comparative Statement of Estimates and Statistics on Narcotic Drugs

This annual publication contains a "balance-sheet" for a given-year intended to show, for each country and territory, whether the available supply of narcotic drugs has been duly accounted for and whether stocks existing at the end of the year tally with the balance calculated by the Board. This table also shows whether governments have remained within the limits of the estimates.

data received by the ILO between successive issues of the Bulletin.

The Bulletin contains data on employment indices relating to the general level of employment, employment in the non-agricultural sector and employment in manufacturing; general level of unemployment; hours of work in the non-agricultural sector and in manufacturing; general indices of consumer prices and indices of food prices. The second quarter issue also contains data for the preceding October derived from an annual inquiry on wages of adult wage earners in 41 occupations, monthly salaries and normal hours of work per week of employees in a few selected occupations and retail prices of selected consumer goods.

Technical Guide

This publication presents summary descriptions of the methods used by national statistical offices in the computation of the general series published by the ILO in both the Bulletin of Labour Statistics and the Year Book of Labour Statistics; it provides useful basic information on the coverage of the series, their definition, methods of computation and other characteristics which determine the international comparability of these statistics.

Changes introduced in the methodological descriptions of the series published in the Bulletin of Labour Statistics (introduction of new series or revision of existing series) appear in an annex to the Bulletin and are subsequently incorporated in the next edition of the Technical Guide. The fifth edition (1976) consists of two volumes (over 450 pages): Volume I dealing with consumer prices and Volume II relating to statistics on employment, unemployment, hours of work and wages. The next edition in the series is under preparation and is expected to be published in 1978. Published since 1963.

Household Income and Expenditure Statistics

This publication presents the principal results of national household income and expenditure surveys. The first edition, published in 1967, presented for some 60 countries detailed results of household income and expenditure surveys carried out during the period 1950-1964. The two volumes of the second edition (No. 2) in the series, which were published in 1974 and 1976 respectively, cover 77 countries of (i) Africa, Asia, Latin America; and (ii) Northern America, Europe and the USSR and Oceania; they contain data drawn from selected household income and expenditure surveys conducted during the period 1960-1972.

Data for the different countries are presented on a uniform basis, so far as possible, to facilitate comparative analysis. Included are data on the structure, composition and size distribution of household incomes and data on household expenditures for consumption and non-consumption purposes.

With a view to making the volumes as comprehensive as possible, an attempt has been made to obtain all the reports published by the different countries relating to important surveys; however, preference has been given to the latest available nation-wide survey. In some cases, selections had to be made among several surveys of less than nation-wide scope. Thus, for certain countries, two or more surveys have been included although in general those of very limited scope have been excluded.

Cost of Social Security

The latest issue (1976) of this triennial publication relates to the Eighth ILO Inquiry on the Cost of Social Security covering the years 1967-1971. It presents comparative tables on receipts and expenditures, related to different national accounts aggregates, per capita figures both absolute and indices adjusted to consumers price levels, percentage distribution of receipts by source and expenditure by object as well as other relative figures.

Comparative data are included for 71 countries whereas incomplete data for another 15 countries are included in a table showing relative distribution of benefit expenditure by branch. A supplement presents results of a pilot study on the cost of non-statutory schemes.

The basic data for each country which were previously published in the printed volume are, for reasons of economy, now available in a mimeographed version.

Labour Force Estimates and Projections 1950-2000 (ILOLFP) Geneva, 1977.

The data presented in this second edition supersede those issued in similar six-volume publication entitled ILO, Labour Force Projections, 1965-1985, First edition. Geneva, 1971.

The six volumes are: Volume I, Asia; Volume II, Africa; Volume III, Latin America; Volume IV, Northern America, Europe, Oceania and the USSR; Volume V, World Summary and Volume VI, Methodological supplement.

Volumes I - V present data on population, labour force, labour force activity rates by sex and age group for the period 1950-2000 and on total labour force in agriculture, industry and services by sex for the period 1950-1970.

These standardised data cover some 152 countries and territories; summary data are also given in the form of figures for each of the 24 regions and 8 major areas of the world, as well as for the whole world and for all more developed regions combined and for all other regions combined.

production with a view to updating the tables published in the Production Yearbook. In addition, it publishes production data on milk, butter, cheese, condensed and evaporated milk, dry milk casein and meat for period covering three, six, nine months and the whole year. The trade data contained in the Bulletin are on a quarterly cumulative basis showing quantity data of selected agricultural commodities for the main exporting and importing countries. It also gives commodity price series in selected countries. A short text followed by statistical tables on production and consumption of fertilizers is published once a year. The Bulletin is also one of the principal outlets of FAO for up-to-date notes on the situation for individual commodities and for articles of topical interest on economic aspects of food and agriculture. Published since 1948.

Three-year Average Food Balance Sheets

A general introductory note describes the various elements of food balance sheets and sets out the relevant concepts, definitions and classifications. Country notes furnish further details, particularly on sources, coverage, technical conversion factors and quality of data. The food balance sheets are published in the language in which FAO officially corresponds with the country concerned, while the notes are given in the three official languages of FAO. A glossary of all terms used in food balance sheets is also included. The last issue was published in 1971.

Economic Accounts for Agriculture (Production Accounts), 1961-71 (FAOEAA)

This first issue (1975) of the biennial publication on the series of economic accounts for agriculture includes internationally comparable information on aggregate values of total production, intermediate consumption of agricultural and non-agricultural commodities, gross domestic product and its components in agriculture for 62 countries, 33 of which are developing. The publication consists of two parts, national and international. The first provides the country tables, notes on the data provided in detail, their reference and comparison with the summary data published in the United Nations Yearbook of National Accounts Statistics on gross domestic product (a) for agriculture and (b) for agriculture together with forestry, hunting and fishery, and relationships among the main sub-aggregates. The second part presents two tables. The first table brings together principal value aggregates (total production, gross output of agriculture, intermediate consumption, gross and net product) for 62 countries, derived from the detailed country tables in part one. The second table reproduces gross domestic product of agriculture and other bio-primary activities, non-farm industries and total economy for all countries as reported in the United Nations Yearbook of National Accounts Statistics.

Review of Food Consumption Surveys

The first issue of this Review was brought out in 1958, with a supplement in 1965 and a second edition in two volumes in 1970. The third edition also in two volumes and expected to be published in 1978. It contained data on per capita food consumption expressed in expenditure, and quantity and nutritive value classified mainly by economic status and geographical areas expressed in terms of per capita or total household living expenditure obtained from 26 food consumption surveys in 16 countries in North America and Europe and about 30 food consumption surveys in 20 countries in Africa, Latin America, Asia and the Near East.

Report on the 1960 World Census of Agriculture, Vols. I and V

Volume I published in 1966, deals in a standardized form with census results for countries that participated in the 1960 World Census of Agriculture and with the major characteristics of the national censuses. (A similar volume dealing with the 1950 World Census of Agriculture was published in 1955.) Volume V provides a comprehensive picture of the structure of agriculture and agricultural production. International summaries, with some analysis, of information from the national censuses taken under the broad framework of the 1960 World Census of Agriculture are also included.

Report on the 1970 World Census of Agriculture — Census Bulletins

These bulletins, issued periodically, contain census results of the countries that took the census of agriculture within the framework of the Programme for the 1970 World Census of Agriculture. The aim of the issue of census results is to make accessible in a standard and comparable form the census data contained in the national census reports which are issued in diverse forms and in different languages. This practice of issuing census results for a couple of countries at a time in the Census Bulletins is to avoid the delay that would arise if the results of many countries were to be issued in a single publication. The first Census Bulletin was issued in January 1973 and by end of 1977 eighteen bulletins were issued containing census data from 45 countries. They will continue to be issued until the national results made available to FAO have been covered.

Part Two

DATA BANKS OF ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL STATISTICS

DATA BANKS OF ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL STATISTICS

I. EXPLANATORY NOTES

One of the most important developments in international statistics in the last decade has been the increased use of computers in the United Nations system. The application of computer technology has made possible types of research and analysis in the economic and social field that were not feasible only a decade ago. Accordingly, in many divisions and departments of the United Nations, specialized agencies and other intergovernmental organizations, a reorientation of statistical activities, research, and analysis has occurred. In addition, the use of computers has allowed the production of more comprehensive and timely reports and has increased efficiency in administrative operations.

The information contained in this part of the present volume is supplementary to part one, which contains the list of international statistical series. For the most part, the information provided refers to 1978.

DATA BANKS OF ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL STATISTICS

II. INVENTORY OF DATA BASES OF ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL STATISTICS

An inventory of data bases of economic and social statistics was originally prepared by the Statistical Office in January 1973 based on the replies of the organizations of the United Nations system to a questionnaire. The inventory has been brought up to date on an annual basis since then. In this part, the inventory is updated to 1978 and includes information on non-United Nations organizations as well.

This inventory was prepared in order to improve the interchange and joint use of machine-readable economic and social data and to eliminate deficiencies and duplication of effort in these areas. It was also expected that the inventory would be of considerable value to the Statistical Commission in its work on co-ordination of the statistical activities of the United Nations system. Another important aim was to provide information on available computerized data to potential users.

The term "data bank", as used in this Directory, refers to a large set of statistical data compiled in computerized form, that is, a set of data stored in machine-readable form on various storage media (magnetic tape, disk, punched-cards etc.). The data bank of an organization may consist of a single "data base" or of a number of data bases, each relating to a main category (or categories) of economic and social statistics. The data bases are classified by their statistical content.

Throughout the present volume the individual data bases are identified by a number (for example, UNSO-1), which serves to identify the data base itself and to link the information provided in this part with that contained in part one.

Additional definitions and explanations appear as necessary in the sections which follow.

A. Data bases by subject

The data bases of the international statistical system are arranged in this section by subject-matter. The subjects are those comprising major divisions of the classification of international statistics used in part one. Certain data bases are listed under more than one heading because they contain more than one type of economic and social statistics. Also, there are subjects listed for which no computerized data bases now exist.

C. Technical description of the data bases by organization

This section presents a technical description of the individual data bases (files) of the organizations. "Files" are defined as collections of related data records organized in a specific manner and treated as a unit. Characteristics by which a file can be defined are country, personnel, year, population etc. A file may occupy several physical units or a part of one physical unit.

The information included in the technical description is listed below.

(a) Number of logical records in the file. The term "record" can mean a physical unit or a logical unit. A "logical record" is defined as a collection of data fields related to a common identifier and treated as a unit, i.e., it is defined in terms of the information it contains, its functions and its use (for example, in personnel files a logical record would contain data on one person).

(b) Average rate of growth of the files is expressed in terms of the number of logical records entered into the file per year, or in percentage.

(c) Logical record length means the number of words or characters (bytes) in the logical record. It is indicated whether the information has been entered in terms of words or in terms of characters. A "word" is defined as a string of characters (or bits) considered as an entity. In the computer memory one word is a basic unit for data storage. "Characters" are defined as digits, letters or special symbols (i.e., periods, commas, plus signs etc.).

(d) Type of logical records in the file. Logical records are of the following types: (1) "fixed-length records" (F-Format) are logical records in a file which are of equal length; (2) "variable-length records" (V-Format) are logical records in a file which are of unequal length; (3) "undefined records" (U-Format) are logical records in a file which are of unspecified or unknown length. The type of records contained in the file can be: fixed length, variable length, undefined length, other (specified).

(e) Physical record or block is defined as one or more logical records. It is a record from the standpoint of the manner or form in which it is stored, retrieved and moved.

(f) Organization of the file. With respect to organization, there are three kinds of files. (1) Sequential. Logical records are organized on the basis of their successive physical positions. This type of organization is typical of magnetic tape, punched cards and paper tape. (2) Indexed sequential. Logical records are stored sequentially on a direct access device and each logical record contains a key which determines its location. The location of each logical record is computed through the use of an index. (3) Direct. Logical records are in random order on a direct access volume. Each logical record is stored or retrieved according to its actual address or its address relative to the beginning of the file. The file is characterized by some predictable relationship between the key of a logical record and the address of that record. Direct access storage devices are discs, magnetic drums and data cells.

(g) Computer system used to create file. Examples are IBM 370, CDC 3300, ICL 1902, BURROUGHS 5700.

(h) Programming languages used to create file. Examples are: COBOL, FORTRAN, PL/I, Assembly Language, Report Program Generator, ALGOL 60, other (specified).

(i) File storage device. This means the storage device or devices of the file, for example: magnetic tape, disc (removable), disc (non-removable), magnetic drum, data cell, punched cards, paper tape, other (specified).

(j) Number of volumes in the file. "Volumes" or "physical units" are storage media such as magnetic tapes, discs, magnetic drums etc. One volume is, for example, a reel of magnetic tape, a disc pack or a data cell (if the file is on punched cards, irrespective of the number of cards, it should be considered as one volume).

(k) Tape label describes the label (and specifies in which system the label is given [e.g., standard label IBM]), if any, which is used for the file. "Label" is defined as one or more records at the beginning of a magnetic tape that identifies and describes the data recorded on the tape and in certain cases its recording mode.

(l) Recording code means the representation of data in a symbolic form that can be accepted by a computer, for example: EBCDIC (Extending Binary Coded Decimal Interchange Code), BCD (Binary Coded Decimal), ASCII (American Standard Code for Information Interchange), other (specified).

(m) Recording density means the number of bits in a single linear track measured per unit of the recording medium (i.e., in bits per inch - bpi).

(n) Field description. "Field" in a logical record, is defined as a specified area used for a particular category of data. The name of the data in the field has been entered. For example, the data in a field may be a country code, a table code (if the data is entered into a publication), quantity, value etc.

(o) Notes. This column contains additional information about the contents of the fields. For example, if there is a special unit of measurement associated with a field, it is recorded in this column. Similarly, when a field consists of a classification or a coding standard, that classification or coding standard's name is entered. Or, a field may require both of these entries. The column may contain any other relevant information.

(p) Format. This column contains the technical details required for interpreting the data fields by computer. It describes the representation and size of the data contained in the fields. Data representation may be either according to the data's internal storage format or according to its external format.

(i) External representation can be one of the three codes.

DATA BANKS OF ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL STATISTICS

“C” (character): any combination of alphabetic, numeric and/or special characters. As a special case, all characters may be numeric, in which case the field is actually integer.

“I” (integer): string of decimal digits without a decimal point.

“R” (real): a string of decimal digits with a decimal point.

(ii) Internal representation can be one of three codes:

“BI” (binary integer);

“BR” (binary real); or

“PD” (packed decimal).

The number preceding the representation code refers to the count of data items in the field, while the number following it indicates the width of the data. Thus, “9 I 10” means the data representation is integer, data width is 10 bytes or characters, whichever is standard terminology for the pertinent machine, and there are 9 such contiguous data fields. The absence of a count implies one data item field.

DATA BANKS OF ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL STATISTICS

D. Availability of machine-readable data by organization

Generally the international organizations make available to users the statistical data maintained in machine-readable data files. In some instances the organizations impose restrictions on some recipients of the data files. For example, in the case of UNESCO, requests from Governments are subject to review of the specific data involved while requests from other users (universities, research organizations, business firms etc.) are not generally accepted. GATT supplies data files to international organizations subject to approval of all Contracting Parties for which data are included; the same procedure is followed for Governments for which data are not included in the files; data files are not provided to other organizations. The OECD Statistics Service first distinguishes between the way the data are used. When the data are not made available to a third party in machine-readable form (either on magnetic tape or disk, or by on-line access), there is no restriction other than that which is already imposed on the buyer or the user of OECD paper publications: the reproduction or the use of the OECD data is free, but the source of the data when produced as such, or when studies or computations are based on the use of OECD data, must be acknowledged.

With a few exceptions, the organizations charge users for machine-readable data. The interagency exchange of machine-readable data in standard format and in accordance with pre-arranged time schedules is free of charge with the return of the recording medium. Exchange of other machine-readable data to meet specific formats and requirements is provided, within the limits of existing resources, on a cost basis. The charges made to Governments and other users are summarized in the table below.

Several of the organizations will, under certain circumstances, provide some special processing of their data files. This service is usually provided, by agreement only, to the extent permitted by existing computer programmes and/or the availability of resources. Furthermore, some flexibility in output format, record size, blocking etc. is possible to the extent that the variations can be accommodated by the agency's computing facilities.

Cost of machine-readable data to Governments and other users

	Governments	Others
UNSO	cost recovery less labour	cost recovery
ECE ^a	free of charge	specified on request
ESCAP	computing and medium cost	computing and medium cost
ECA	specified on request	specified on request

^a Data are provided free of charge to Governments and non-profit making institutions (universities, research institutes etc.) with the provision that the medium must be returned and the source acknowledged.

^b A reduced fixed price is given to FAO member Governments.

^c Data are provided free of charge to Governments, universities and research organizations if an empty tape is provided for copying the file.

^d Tape subscriptions are available to International Financial Statistics, Direction of Trade, the Balance of Payments Yearbook, and the Government Statistics Yearbook.
