

CES Task Force on valuing unpaid household service work

Dominic Webber

Head of economic well-being at the UK Office for National Statistics

Abstract

The presentation will outline some of the key concepts of unpaid household service work with particular emphasis on the gender angle. This will be followed by a brief overview of the work of the UN Task force for valuing unpaid household work, before introducing some of the methodological challenges we face. The presentation will discuss the household satellite account, and conclude with an overview of the areas requiring more research.