Travel Note

This is some friendly advice for those traveling to Yogyakarta by air:

- There are many daily flights from Soekarno-Hatta International Airport (CGK) in Jakarta to Yogyakarta International Airport (YIA). However, most are serviced by national carriers, which may not have a partnership arrangement with the major international airlines (the exception being Garuda Indonesia). This means that if you try to book a connecting flight from your place of departure all the way to Yogyakarta the flight might be expensive and/or be very long. Our advice to you is to look into the alternative of breaking up your flight into buying one ticket to Soekarno-Hatta International Airport in Jakarta and another ticket from CGK to YIA. This could mean that you would stay over one night in the airport hotel at Soekarno-Hatta International Airport, but the whole trip could still be less expensive and more convenient.

- Also good to know is that YIA is serviced by a non-stop flight from Kuala Lumpur to Yogyakarta with AirAsia.
