Why measure now?

- We have never been as technically and methodologically prepared as now.
- National Statistics Offices are the first line of implementation, and the instruments respond to the frequent request of support we receive
- To encourage our partners to invest their time and resources it is required to have a sound methodology that they can trust
- Surveys are expensive and to invest in an operation we need to be certain that the data will be accurate and timely

Country Example: Tunisia

The main grounds of discrimination experienced among the total population were financial status (14.7%), region (11,8%) dialect (6.6%), marital status (3,7%).

Satisfaction with health services was 52,2% (clinics and basic health services).

80% expressed satisfaction when access the health services due to coronavirus*

72% of the population felt safe when walking at night (83.9 males ; 60.8% females).

2 % Experienced physical violence (2.9 males and 1.2 females)

2.9% experienced sexual harassment

7.7% experienced psychological violence

5.4% Experienced a dispute in the last 24 months

Most common dispute experienced is on Land, or buying and selling property – 31,3%

The second most common are neighbourhood disputes – 17,7%

Three most common dispute resolution mechanisms was the court – 70,2%

* Indicator is not part of the SDG framework but was adapted to the current context by the national implementation team.
