World Heritage sites

Fort Jesus, the Gedi Ruins, Koobi Fora, Mount Kenya, Hells Gate National Park and the Maasai Mara National Reserve.

Historical sites

Kenya has over 400 historical sites ranging from prehistoric fossils and petrified forests, to 14th century slave trading settlements, Islamic ruins and 16th century Portuguese Forts.

Landscape

The landscape of Kenya is distinctly divided into two halves - the eastern half which slopes gently to the coral-backed seashore, and the western portion, which rises abruptly through a series of hills and plateaus to the Eastern Rift Valley. West of the Rift is a westward-sloping plateau, and the lowest part is covered by Lake Victoria. The highest point in the country is the snow-capped peak of Mount Kenya (5,199 m), the second highest mountain in Africa. The coastline extends some 536 km from the Tanzanian border in the southeast, to the Somali border in the northeast. The main rivers are the Athi/Galana and the Tana. The major lakes are: Lake Victoria, Turkana, Baringo, Naivasha, Magadi, Jipe, Bogoria, Nakuru and Elementeita.

Flora

Kenya's flora is diverse. Coastal forests contain palm, mangrove, teak, copal and sandalwood trees. Forests of baobab, euphorbia and acacia trees cover the lowlands to an elevation of approximately 915 m. Extensive areas of savannah are interspersed with groves of acacia and papyrus, which characterize the terrain from 915 to 2,745 meters above sea level. Bamboo and camphor are common in the dense rainforest of the eastern and southeastern mountain slopes. The alpine zone (above 3,550 meters) contains many Senecio and Lobelia plants.

Fauna

Despite the tremendous losses inflicted by hunting and poaching during the twentieth century, Kenya teems with wildlife. There are 80 major animal species ranging from the 'Big Five' (elephant, buffalo, rhinoceros, lion and leopard) to tiny antelopes such as the dik-dik, which is slightly larger than a rabbit. At least 32 endemic species are endangered.

Avifauna

Kenya boasts around 1,137 species of birds. Spotting over 100 bird species in a day is not uncommon.

KEEPING HEALTHY AND SAFE

Health

Vaccinations

A number of vaccinations are recommended for visitors to Kenya (check with a travel clinic in advance).

Malaria

Malaria is endemic in tropical Africa and protection against it is necessary. There are numerous prophylactics on the market, and it is recommended that prophylactics be taken. Use of mosquito nets is also recommended in endemic areas. Furthermore, use of mosquito repellents is recommended.

The malarial risk in Nairobi

The risk of contracting malaria in Nairobi (or at any altitude above 2,500 m) is minimal. For specific health advice, contact the UNON Clinic.

General health care

Avoid dehydration and exhaustion by drinking plenty of bottled water. Rest, drink and eat at regular intervals.

Avoid sunstroke or sunburn by protecting yourself with clothing, hats and ultra-violet barriers. The sun is more powerful at altitude and is capable of burning through both cloud and haze. In the case of heat exhaustion cool yourself with shade and/or cold water, and increase fluid intake. In the case of a heat stroke, cool yourself with shade and/or cold water; increase fluid intake and contact the emergency medical services, as heat stroke is a medical emergency.

HIV/AIDS

HIV/AIDS is a serious problem throughout Africa, and an estimated 7- 9 % of the Kenyan population is HIV positive.

Medical insurance

Travellers to Kenya are recommended to obtain medical insurance prior to arrival. The UN will not assume responsibility for any medical costs incurred by visitors. The Government of Kenya will also not cover any medical expenses incurred by visitors.

Personal Safety

Great efforts have been made of late by the Kenyan government to improve the security situation. However since Kenyan society is less affluent than that of the developed world, ostentatious or careless displays of wealth or valuables may attract unwelcome attention.

Personal possessions

Valuable items such as large amounts of cash, and irreplaceable documents should be locked in the hotel room safe. Handbags, cameras and jewellery are attractive targets for thieves, and street muggings can occur at any time of the day or night, especially in Nairobi and Mombasa. Visitors should remain alert, and when possible take a taxi rather than walking. Never walk at night. Visitors are also advised to ignore the attentions of street children, or of any other persons who may approach them with unsolicited requests.

Security clearance

The UN in Kenya currently has 8 Security Levels (see map overleaf). Certain areas may experience heightened security. For further details please contact the Security Control Room (762) 6666.

Sexual assault

Immediately contact the Aga Khan or Nairobi Hospital emergency rooms (see below) in the case of sexual assault. Both hospitals will provide anti-retroviral drugs that may prevent transmission of diseases. Treatment should start as soon as possible, and at the very latest, 24 hours after the event.

Hospitals and doctors

There are many highly qualified doctors, surgeons, and dentists in Nairobi and Mombasa. Lodges and hotels in the game reserves usually have resident medical staff. Most lodges also have radio or telephone contact with the Flying Doctor Service in Nairobi.

Recommended private hospitals in Nairobi:

Nairobi Hospital: Tel: (020) 272 2160

Aga Khan Hospital: Tel: (020) 3740000/ 3662000

M.P. Shah Hospital Tel: (020) 374 2763

WHERE TO STAY

One of Africa's prime tourist destinations and the longest established Kenya's tourist infrastructure is well tried and tested. The spirit of Kenya is also exemplified by its tradition of hospitality. Few people in the world are as welcoming as the Kenyans. The range of accommodation is comprehensive ranging from budget travel to luxury hotels. Kenya's hotels vary enormously in price and facilities and it is recommended that travel arrangements be booked through a larger hotel chain.

Lodges

Lodges are located in the national parks and reserves and are usually expensive. The food and facilities, however, are generally of the highest standards.

Tented Camps

Comprising a small selection of permanently-sited canvas tents, which are roofed, pitched on a concrete base or raised wooden platform, and often have a bathroom to the rear, tented camps have little to do with 'camping'. Most offer a surprising degree of luxury with flush toilets, hot and cold running water and electricity.

Where to stay in Nairobi

Nairobi offers a wide range of accommodation options. The following hotels are suggested and have received UNON security clearance. For further details on the amenities offered we suggest you visit the websites of the hotels detailed.

GETTING THERE AND ABOUT

Getting there by Air

Numerous international carriers serve Kenya, and Nairobi is the hub of the East African region. Kenya has two international airports: Jomo Kenyatta International Airport is half an hour's drive depending on traffic, from Nairobi's city centre, and Mombasa's Moi International Airport is even closer to the town centre. Most tourist hotels have minibuses to transport guests, and public buses serve both the Jomo Kenyatta and Moi airports. Taxis are readily available at both airports (officially regulated tariffs should be displayed).

Getting to the hotel and the UNON Compound in Gigiri

It is recommended that visitors to the UNON Compound take a taxi from the airport to the hotel. Many hotels listed in this booklet also supply courtesy buses to transport guests from the airport to the hotel (and in some cases from the hotel to the UNON Gigiri Compound). The Government of Kenya may also provide transport, depending on the Host Government Agreement. Visitors should advise the hotel in advance as to their requirements. Prepaid vouchers are available at JKIA. Recommended taxi services are listed in the taxi section below.

Getting about

Internal air travel

Domestic flights are convenient, and minimize the time spent on Kenyan roads, which are often in poor condition. Frequent flights (both scheduled and charter) operate from JKIA, Nairobi's Wilson Airport and from Mombasa and Malindi to the main towns and national parks.

Trains

Kenya's single-track railway line runs from Mombasa to Kisumu (via Nairobi). Overnight trains depart the major stations of Mombasa, Nairobi and Kisumu around sunset and arrive at their destinations just after sunrise. The 'Deluxe' option is recommended for rail travel.

'Matatus'

Most Kenyans use 'matatu' as the primary method of transport. They are typically minivans following specific routes. Fares are regulated by 'stages' and payment must be made to the 'tout' who operates the sliding door. Matatus are privately operated, and although much safer than they used to be, they are not recommended for visitors to the UN.

Night travel

Night is not recommended due to poor road conditions, poor street lighting, a relaxed attitude towards operational headlights, and armed hold-ups.

Taxis

Taxis are plentiful outside the main hotels, shopping arcades, and central city points. There are a number of dial-up taxi companies in major towns. A tariff sheet should be available, and it is wise to agree the price of the journey before you set off.

Recommended taxi contacts

Hilltop	Tel: (020) 2723218
Jatco	Tel: (020) 446096/4440180/4440181,
Jim cab	Tel: (020) 7122565/7120344
Kenatco	Tel: (020) 230771/2 or 316611

Car Rental

There are plenty of well-established and reputable car hire companies, but car rental is not generally recommended. To hire a car you must be over 23 and under 70 years and have had a driving license (International or Commonwealth are also valid) for a minimum of two years. Prices vary enormously. Kenyan motorists drive on the left and overtake on the right. Road conditions in many places are poor.

Useful numbers for car rental (when dialling from a mobile prefix the numbers with 020)

Avenue Car Hire	Tel: (020) 313297/317770
Avis Rent a Car	Tel: (020) 244977 or 316061
Budget Car Hire	Tel: (020) 652144-9
Car Hire Services	Tel: (020) 822090
Concorde	Tel: (020) 4448953-4 or 4448134
Hertz Rent-a-Car	Tel: (020) 311143
Payless Car Hire	Tel: (020) 652144-9

Driving in Kenya

Kenyans drive on the left side of the road, and defensive driving is recommended. Kenyans typically place broken tree branches on the road in the case of a breakdown.

Note: Never leave valuables in the car, always lock the car, always padlock spare wheels and always put windows up at urban traffic lights.

Police road blocks

Roadblocks are indicated by large pieces of iron (fitted with spikes) extending across the road with a small gap in the middle. They are preceded by a warning triangle. Police officers will point directly at those vehicles they wish to stop. They will then wave them to the side of the road, and provide instruction on further steps.

Road accidents

Visitors are advised against stopping at the scene of a serious accident due to the fact that blame can sometimes be incorrectly apportioned, and violence may erupt.

Armed vehicle hijacking

Armed hijacking of vehicles in Kenya, particularly in Nairobi and Mombasa, is fairly common. In the event of a hijacking, drivers are strongly advised to comply with the demands of the hijackers.

Safety on Safari

Visitors wishing to go on safari should use a reputable travel agent to book the trip (see Travel Agents within the UNON compound).

Easily accessed by 2WD vehicles including taxis, it offers a mini Kenyan safari, which can easily be done in a morning. The park also offers the Safari Walk, restaurant facilities and an Animal Orphanage (Open 8.30 to 17.30 daily).

Weekend excursions to the National Parks and Reserves

Kenya is famous for her national parks and reserves, which are administered by the Kenya Wildlife Service (KWS) and rank as some of the finest in the world. They exist as total wildlife sanctuaries where human habitation is prohibited and animals can roam wild and free. The following parks and reserves are the closest to Nairobi.

Hell's Gate National Park – 100 km from Nairobi

Hell's Gate is one of the few remaining places in Kenya where you can walk and mountain bike (bikes for hire at the gate) unguided amongst herds of gazelle, antelope and zebra. A compact park with plenty of biodiversity and excellent birdlife, it features dormant volcanoes, hot springs, geothermal geysers, cliffs, ravines and volcanic plugs.

Lake Nakuru National Park – 160 km from Nairobi

Lake Nakuru is world famous for the flocks of lesser flamingos, which frost its blue shores sugar pink. It also plays host to over 400 species of bird life, being second only to Lake Baringo as the most prolific ornithological site in Kenya.

Mount Kenya National Park – 175 km from Nairobi.

Home to the highest (5,199m) mountain in Kenya, Mount Kenya National Park contrasts warm savannah with glaciers and snowstorms. Both the Kikuyu and Masai regard the mountain as the home of their Supreme Being, Ngai, and on her slopes the plants grow 100 times bigger than they do elsewhere. Mount Kenya is also one of only a small number of great mountains whose summit is accessible to non-climbers.

The Aberdares National Park – 180 kms from Nairobi

Gazetted in 1950 this park is one of the oldest in the country and famous as the place where Princess Elizabeth became Queen Elizabeth II whilst staying in the original Treetops Lodge. Its prize inhabitant is the Bongo Antelope, it is also home to the second largest population of indigenous black rhino; and features miles of high moorland scenery, tumbling waterfalls and sensational views.

Tsavo East National Park – 230 km from Nairobi

A true wilderness evoking vivid memories of Africa's forgotten grandeur and encompassing arid plains, savannah and scrubland. There are over 8,000 elephants in some of the largest herds in the country and Tsavo entered 'frontier' lore at the turn of the century when two maverick 'man eating' lions devoured over 50 Indians working on the Kenya.

Tsavo West National Park – 230 km from Nairobi

Also offers a glorious diversity of habitats but the biggest attraction by far is Mzima Springs, a fount of cool clear water that has gushed hundreds of miles from beneath Mount Kilimanjaro before bursting out of the rocks at Mzima at the rate of 250 million litres a day.

Amboseli National Park – 230 km from Nairobi

Amboseli provides the classic Hollywood image of Africa: vast herds of buffaloes and elephants ranging across the open plains and set against the glorious backdrop of a snow-capped Mount Kilimanjaro. At 5,896 meters, the ‘Shining Mountain’ is the highest freestanding mountain in the world and is topped by one fifth of all the ice in Africa.

The Maasai Mara – 270 km from Nairobi

Often described as the greatest of nature’s stages, the Masai Mara, with its huge dramatic skies, is perhaps the most popular of all Kenya’s game parks. The landscape, which is mostly savannah, hosts around 22 families of lions and 3,000 elephants while the Mara River is one of the best places to observe crocodiles and hippos.
