The study, which is based on 2011 Population and Housing Census data, analyses work commuting flows in Albania, through a spatial perspective of analysis, in order to identify commuting patterns. It is based on the following information for employed persons: type of place of work, geographic location of the place of work, mode of transport to work, frequency of travelling from home to work.

Census Knowledge Base