

Maldives Coding System

International classifications systems were first introduced during the 1977 census, to code Industry and Occupation information. There after, international classification systems has been used in coding surveys and census data. The following are the classifications used.

1. International Standard Classification of Occupations ( ISCO )
2. International Standard Industrial Classification of all Economic Activities (ISIC )
3. Central Production Classification ( CPC )
4. Classification of Individual Consumption by Purpose ( COICOP )
5. International Standard Classification of Education ( ISCED )

ISIC (version 3.0), ISCO (version...) and CPC (version 1.0) are the widely used two among the classifications. CPC was first introduced for Household Income and Expenditure Survey (HIES) 1993. The aim was to record and store the consumer product list from household diary for the use of Consumer Price Index basket. CPC along with ISIC and ISCO have been used in all the surveys carried out by the Ministry of Planning, National Development (MPND). COICOP is also used but not widely.

At present MPND does not have separate classification systems, but we incorporate some extensions based on the country's Industry, Occupation, Product and service categories or items. The survey information are coded in detailed levels given in the classifications, for example, CPC codes are mostly 5 digit level but for food items we have made extra two digit level to capture detailed items level.

There are number of difficulties that face we face when using classifications. In ISIC, it is required to code the exact description of the Industry that respondents specified, sometimes more than one related categories or sometimes we do not find an appropriate code hence not else where classified (n.e.c) codes are substituted. Similar problems arise in ISCO.

For example, in Maldives carpenter is a person not specialized but does all sorts of carpentry work, like manufacture of furniture and fixtures. There are different codes, making of doors (ISIC code, 2022), tables (3610), in this case it is hard to give a specific industry code for the carpenter. Under manufacturing category, we face much difficulty since in Maldives we have a local type of "manufacturing industry" but in most cases repair work and small machinery work are undertaken in a smaller scale.

In CPC, we found the category descriptions some times too general but lots of items which we come across are too specific. For example: Incase of "dhiyaahakuru" (a local product made out of toddy), for this product there is a 5 digit general code which does not fit this product but we need to identify the exact product.

The following are some of these examples:

Another difficulty that we face is, when we give codes again we have to give four digit codes for these items. So most of the items are not separated and many items come under one code. Other than these problems, giving the Central Production Activities (CPC), International Standard Industrial Classification of all Economic Activities (ISIC) and International Standard Classification of Occupations (ISCO) codes we face many other problems too. Some of the problems are listed below.
