A Agriculture, forestry and fishing

This section includes the exploitation of vegetal and animal natural resources, comprising the activities of growing of crops, raising and breeding of animals, harvesting of timber and other plants, production of animal products from a farm or natural habitats.

This section includes also:

This section excludes undifferentiated subsistence goods-producing activities of households, which is classified in class 9810.

01 Crop and animal production, hunting and related service activities

This division includes two basic activities, namely the production of crop products and production of animal products. This division includes growing of crops on open land, under cover or in greenhouses. Group 015 (Mixed farming) breaks with the usual principles for identifying main activity. It accepts that many agricultural units have reasonably balanced crop and animal production, and that it would be arbitrary to classify them in one category or the other.

This division includes the soilless cultivation of crops, including hydroponics and aquaponics.

This division also includes service activities incidental to agriculture, as well as hunting, trapping and related activities.

Agricultural activities exclude any subsequent processing of the agricultural products (classified under divisions 10 and 11 (Manufacture of food products and beverages) and division 12 (Manufacture of tobacco products)), beyond that needed to prepare them for the primary markets. The preparation of products for the primary markets is included here.

The division excludes field construction (e.g. agricultural land terracing, drainage, preparing rice paddies etc.) classified in section F (Construction) and buyers and cooperative associations engaged in the marketing of farm products classified in section G. Also excluded is the landscape service activities, which is classified in class 8130.

C Manufacturing

This section includes the physical, chemical or biological transformation of materials, substances, or components into new products, although this cannot be used as the single universal criterion for defining manufacturing (see remark on processing of waste below). The materials, substances, or components undergoing transformation are either raw materials or products of agriculture, forestry, fishing, mining or quarrying as well as products of other manufacturing activities. Substantial alteration, renovation or reconstruction of goods is generally considered to be manufacturing.

The output of a manufacturing process may be finished in the sense that it is ready for utilisation or consumption, or it may be semi-finished in the sense that it is to become an input for further manufacturing. For example, the output of alumina refining is the input used in the primary production of aluminium; primary aluminium is the input to aluminium wire drawing; and aluminium wire is the input for the manufacture of fabricated wire products.

This section includes factoryless goods producers (FGPs) that completely outsources the transformation process but still controls the production process and supplies critical intellectual property inputs, regardless of whether the principal owns the material inputs or not. The FGPs are classified in the same class where they would have been classified if they carried out the manufacturing process themselves. However, this section excludes units that completely outsources the transformation process but neither controls the production process, nor supplies the critical intellectual property inputs, nor owns the material inputs. These units are in fact buying the completed goods from the manufacturer with the intention to re-sell them. Such an activity is classified in section G (Wholesale and retail trade), specifically according to the type of sale and the specific type of goods being sold.

Manufacture of specialised components and parts of, and accessories and attachments to, machinery and equipment is, as a general rule, classified in the same class as the manufacture of the machinery and equipment for which the parts and accessories are intended. Manufacture of unspecialised components and parts of machinery and equipment, e.g. engines, pistons, electric motors, electrical assemblies, valves, gears, roller bearings, is classified in the appropriate class of manufacturing, without regard to the machinery and equipment in which these items may be included.

Making specialised components and accessories by moulding or extruding plastics materials is usually included in group 222.

Assembly of the component parts of manufactured products is considered manufacturing. This includes the assembly of manufactured products from either self-produced or purchased components.

The recovery of waste, i.e. the processing of waste into secondary raw materials is classified in group 383 (Materials and other waste recovery). While this may involve physical, chemical or biological transformations, this is not considered to be a part of manufacturing. The primary purpose of these activities is considered to be the treatment or processing of waste and they are therefore classified in Section E (Water supply; sewerage, waste management and remediation activities). However, the manufacture of new products from secondary raw materials is classified in manufacturing, even if these processes use waste as an input. For example, the production of silver from film waste is considered to be a manufacturing process.

Specialised maintenance and repair of industrial, commercial and similar machinery and equipment is, in general, classified in division 33 (Repair, maintenance and installation of machinery and equipment).

However, the repair and maintenance of computers, personal and household goods and motor vehicles and motorcycles is classified in division 95 (Repair and maintenance of computers, personal and household goods, and motor vehicles and motorcycles).

The installation of industrial machinery and equipment, when carried out as a specialised activity, is classified in class 3320.

Maintenance, repair and installation of equipment that forms an integral part of buildings or similar structures, such as maintenance, repair and installation of escalators or of air-conditioning systems, is classified as construction in section F (Construction), if carried out at the construction site.

As a general rule, the activities in the manufacturing section involve the transformation of materials into new products, and the repair and installation of machinery and equipment. The output is either a new product or a product that has gone through factory rebuilding and remanufacturing. As clarification, the following activities are considered manufacturing in ISIC:

- fresh fish processing (oyster shucking, fish filleting), not done on a fishing boat (see 1020)
- milk pasteurising and bottling (see 1050)
- leather converting (see 1511)
- wood preserving (see 1629)
- printing and related activities (see 181)
- tyre retreading (see 2211)
- ready-mixed concrete production (see 2395)
- electroplating, plating, and metal heat treating (see 2592)
- rebuilding or remanufacture of machinery (e.g. automobile engines, see 2910)
- refilling or recharging of fire extinguishers
- manufacture and deliverance of structures and prefabricated buildings with minimal on-site construction work

Conversely, there are activities that, although sometimes involving transformation processes, are classified in other sections of ISIC; in other words, they are not considered as manufacturing. They include:

- logging, classified in section A (Agriculture, forestry and fishing);
- beneficiating of agricultural products, classified in section A (Agriculture, forestry and fishing);
- preparation of food for immediate consumption on the premises is classified to division 56 (Food and beverage service activities);
- beneficiating of ores and other minerals, classified in section B (Mining and quarrying);
- production of gaseous fuels for energy supply through a permanent network, classified in section D (Electricity, gas, steam and air conditioning supply);
- production of compost from organic waste, see 3821
- construction of structures, assembling of prefabricated buildings at the site of construction, classified in section F (Construction);
- assembly provided as part of a delivery or by a seller. However, if assembly is the main activity provided by a contractor it is classified in manufacturing
- activities of breaking bulk and redistribution in smaller lots, including packaging, repackaging, or bottling products, e.g. as liquors or chemicals; sorting of scrap; mixing paints to customer order; and cutting metals to customer order; treatment not resulting into a different good is classified to section G (Wholesale and retail trade).
- publishing and the combined activity of publishing and printing are classified to section J (Publishing, broadcasting, and content production and distribution activities)

10 Manufacture of food products

This division includes the processing of the products of agriculture, forestry and fishing into food for humans or animals, and includes the production of various intermediate products that are not directly food products. The activity often generates associated products of greater or lesser value (for example, hides from slaughtering, or oilcake from oil production).

This division is organised by activities dealing with different kinds of products: meat, fish, fruit and vegetables, fats and oils, milk products, grain mill products, animal feeds and other food products. Production can be carried out for own account, as well as for third parties, as in custom slaughtering. Some activities are considered manufacturing (for example, those performed in bakeries, pastry shops, and prepared meat shops etc. which sell their own production) even though there is retail sale of the products in the producers' own shop. However, where the processing is minimal and does not lead to a real transformation, the unit is classified to wholesale and retail trade (section G).

This division includes also the manufacture of liquids considered food or that use similar manufacturing processes e.g. milk and fruit juice or concentrate.

17 Manufacture of paper and paper products

This division includes the manufacture of pulp, paper, converted paper and the manufacture of products of recycled goods from wood, paper, cardboard and paperboard.

The manufacture of these products is grouped together because they constitute a series of vertically connected processes. More than one activity is often carried out in a single unit.

The manufacture of pulp involves separating the cellulose fibres from other matter in wood, or dissolving and de-inking of used paper, and mixing in small amounts of reagents to reinforce the binding of the fibres. Converted paper products are made from paper and other materials by various techniques.

The paper articles may be printed (e.g. wallpaper, gift wrap), as long as the printing of information is not the main purpose.

The production of pulp, paper and paperboard in bulk is included in group 170, while the remaining classes include the production of further-processed paper and paper products.

18 Printing and reproduction of recorded media

This division includes printing of products, such as newspapers, books, periodicals, business forms and greeting cards, printing on medium, and associated support activities, such as bookbinding, plate-making services, and data imaging. The support activities included here are an integral part of the printing industry, and a product (a printing plate, a bound book, or a computer disk or file) that is an integral part of the printing industry is almost always provided by these operations.

The ownership of the input material is irrelevant to the classification of printing and reproduction of recorded media activities. Division 18 covers explicitly the processing activities.

Processes used in printing include a variety of methods for transferring an image from a plate, screen or computer file to a medium, such as paper, plastics, metal, textile articles, or wood. The most prominent of these methods entails the transfer of the image from a plate or screen to the medium through lithographic, gravure, screen or flexographic printing. Often a computer file is used to directly "drive" the printing mechanism to create the image or electrostatic and other types of equipment (digital or non-impact printing).

Though printing and publishing can be carried out by the same unit (a newspaper, for example), it is less and less the case that these distinct activities are carried out in the same physical location.

This division also includes the reproduction of recorded media, e.g. compact discs, video recordings, software on discs or tapes, records

This division excludes

-publishing activities (see section J)

-manufacture of products with a 3D printer which are classified according to the product and material used

The processes used in the manufacture of furniture are standard methods of forming materials and assembling components, including cutting, molding and laminating. The design of the article, for both aesthetic and functional qualities, is an important aspect of the production process.

Some of the processes used in furniture manufacturing are similar to processes that are used in other segments of manufacturing. For example, cutting and assembly occurs in the production of wood trusses that are classified in division 16 (Manufacture of wood and wood products). However, the multiple processes distinguish wood furniture manufacturing from wood product manufacturing.

Similarly, metal furniture manufacturing uses techniques that are also employed in the manufacture of roll-formed products classified in division 25 (Manufacture of fabricated metal products). The molding process for plastics furniture is similar to the molding of other plastics products. However, the manufacture of plastics furniture tends to be a specialised activity.

G Wholesale and retail trade

This section includes wholesale and retail sale (i.e. sale without transformation) of any type of physical goods, and rendering services incidental to the sale of merchandise. Goods are physical, produced objects for which a demand exists, over which ownership rights can be established and whose ownership can be transferred from one unit to another by engaging in transactions on markets.

Wholesaling and retailing are the final steps in the distribution of merchandise. For this purpose, ancillary activities () are carried out, which is considered to include a number of usual operations (or manipulations) associated with trade, without transforming the goods. These operations (or manipulations) include, for example, sorting, grading and assembling of goods, mixing of goods (e.g. sand), bottling (with or without preceding bottle cleaning), packaging, breaking bulk and repacking for distribution in smaller lots, storage (whether or not frozen or chilled). If not carried out as usual operations (or manipulations) associated with trade, the mentioned activities can be carried out as principal, secondary or ancillary activities in other sections of ISIC.

Wholesale is the resale of new and used goods to retailers, business-to-business trade, such as to industrial, commercial, institutional or professional users, or resale to other wholesalers, or involves acting as an agent or broker in buying merchandise for, or selling merchandise to, such persons or companies. The principal types of businesses included are merchant wholesalers, i.e. wholesalers who take title to the goods they sell, such as wholesale merchants or jobbers, industrial distributors, exporters, importers, and cooperative buying associations, sales branches and sales offices (but not retail stores) that are maintained by manufacturing or mining units apart from their plants or mines for the purpose of marketing their products and that do not merely take orders to be filled by direct shipments from the plants or mines. Also included are intermediation service activities, such as the activities of merchandise and commodity brokers, commission merchants and agents and assemblers, cooperative associations primarily engaged in the marketing of farm products. If the wholesaler does not assume ownership of the goods he trades, he must be classified in group 461. If the wholesaler assumes ownership of the goods, even if he is acting on behalf of a third party, he must be classified in groups 462-469.

Wholesalers frequently physically assemble, sort and grade goods in large lots, break bulk, repack and redistribute in smaller lots, for example pharmaceuticals; store, refrigerate, deliver and install goods, engage in sales promotion for their customers and label design.

Retailing is the resale of new and used goods to the general public for personal or household consumption or utilisation, whatever the channel, in shops, department stores, stalls, mail-order houses, door-to-door sales persons, hawkers, consumer cooperatives, auction houses etc. It includes the sale of goods via showroom (where the exposed goods can be bought), via ephemeral points of sale (e.g. pop up stores) as well as in automated retail shops.

Most retailers take title to the goods they sell, but some act as agents for a principal and sell either on consignment or on a commission basis.

Retailing via mail order or internet is classified according to the type of goods sold.

The distinction between wholesale and retail is not based on the quantity of goods sold, as wholesale sales may be made on a unit basis, just as retail sales may be made on a bulk basis. Instead, the primary distinction between wholesale and retail is the type of customer. Wholesale usually involves business as customers, and retail trade usually sell to individual customers. If a trader sells to both business and household customers without distinction, and it is practically impossible to distinguish the majority type of customers, then it is recommended to treat the seller as a retailer.

This section also includes:

- transit trade activities consisting of buying commodities, moving them from one customs territory to another or from one point to another in the same customs territory and finally selling them. Transit trade represents a triangular transaction in which the transit trader carries out export and import transactions between two or more different countries outside his own economic territory. The transit trader owns the commodity during its transport (difference to intermediaries that do not take ownership of the intermediated goods);
- specialised and non-specialised intermediation service activities for retail trade
- sale of food and/or beverages via vending machines or automated points of sale

This section excludes:

- trade of electricity, see 3513
- trade of gaseous fuels for energy supply through mains, see 3520;

46 Wholesale trade

This division includes wholesale trade of physical goods on own account or on a fee or contract basis (commission trade) related to domestic wholesale trade as well as international wholesale trade (import/export), including on the Internet.

Wholesale trade on own account means owning the goods traded until the ownership is transferred to the buyer. In the case of transit trade, the goods are commissioned by a buyer, but the agent owns the goods while they are in transit, however both cases are classified the same way (groups 462-469).

This division includes wholesale on a fee or contract basis (group 461), specialised wholesale (groups 462-467) and non-specialised wholesale (group 469); class 4630 is an exception as it includes non-specialised wholesale of food, beverages and tobacco.

This includes the enactment and judicial interpretation of laws and their pursuant regulation, as well as the administration of programmes based on them, legislative activities, taxation, national defence, public order and safety, immigration services, foreign affairs and the administration of government programmes.

The legal or institutional status is not, in itself, the determining factor for an activity to belong in this section, rather than the activity being of a nature specified in the previous paragraph. This means that activities classified elsewhere in ISIC do not fall under this section, even if carried out by public entities. For example, administration of the school system (i.e. regulations, checks, curricula) falls under this section, but teaching itself does not (see section Q), and a prison or military hospital is classified to health (see section R). Similarly, some activities described in this section may be carried out by non-government units. This section also includes compulsory social security activities.

Q Education

This section includes education at any level or for any profession. The instructions may be oral or written and may be provided by radio, television, Internet or via correspondence.

Education activities are those having an educational programme, a time frame and some evaluation of the knowledge achieved.

It includes formal initial education at its different levels provided by the different institutions in the regular school system designed for students as a continuous educational pathway before their first entrance to the labour market, as well as formal education outside the regular school system with programme content and qualifications that are equivalent to those of such initial education (adult education, literacy programmes etc).

Also included are activities provided by military schools and academies, prison schools etc. at their respective levels.

This section includes compulsory and non-compulsory schooling and public as well as private education. For each level of education, the classes include special education for physically or mentally disabled persons.

Groups 851, 852, 853 and 854 take into account the formal education activities provided under the ISCED-P 2011 classification, that is, the international classification of educational programmes. As a consequence, the breakdown of the categories in this section is based on the level of education offered as defined by the levels of ISCED-P 2011. The activities of educational institutions providing courses on ISCED-P 2011 level 02 are classified in 8510, on ISCED-P 2011 level 1 in 8520, on ISCED-P 2011 levels 2 in class 8531, on ISCED-P 2011 levels 3 in class 8532, on ISCED-P 2011 levels 4 in class 8533 and on ISCED-P 2011 level 5-6-7-8 in group 854.

Educational institutions classified in groups 852 to 854 are authorised to certify successful completion of an educational programme, usually in the form of a document officially recognized by the relevant national education authorities.

This section is also based on the distinction between formal and non-formal educational programmes provided by the European classification of learning activities (CLA). Thus, this section also includes non-formal instruction primarily concerned with sport and recreational activities such as tennis or golf and education support activities (in groups 855-856).

This section also includes education activities run by self-employed/own account/individual/independent lecturers (tutors, academics, instructors). Such activities should be classified in class 8559.

Activities classified in this class are based on programmes that are usually on a more subject-oriented pattern using more specialised teachers, and more often employ several teachers conducting classes in their field of specialisation.
