Strength and Limitation

- Strength on international migration data collected by BPS:
 - Mapping the out flows of migrants
 - Can be served according to the characteristics of age, sex, years of departure, reason for moving abroad
 - Calculate net international migration by age group and sex for the population projection input
- Limitation on international migration data collected by BPS :
 - Just counting the stock of international migrants
 - Data is only available for every 5 years
 - The population census once every 10 years (1971, 1980, 1990, 2000, 2010)
 - The intercensal population survey once every 10 years (1985, 1995, 2005, 2015)

Secondary Data Collection of International Migration

- Indonesian workers data who work abroad:
 - Obtained from The National Board for the Placement and Protection of Indonesian Overseas Workers (BNP2TKI)
 - Data labour migrants by characteristics: sex, marital status, education attainment and job sector, the country of employment
- Foreign workers data who work in Indonesia:
 - Obtained from Ministry of Manpower and Director General of Immigration
Ministry of Law and Human Rights
 - Recorded from working permits and residence permits/visa
 - Foreigner by country of origin, citizenship, sector of employment and job titles

Strength and Limitation

A world map in a light beige color with a network of white curved lines connecting various countries, representing international migration patterns. The lines are most dense between continents, particularly between Europe and Africa, and between Asia and Australia.

- Strength on international migration data from the relevant institution:
 - Data available each year
- Limitation on data International migration from the relevant institution:
 - Data are not available according to age so it can not be used as input for the calculation of net international migration to calculate population projections

Collaboration Among Institution

A world map in a light beige color with a network of white curved lines connecting various points across the continents, symbolizing global collaboration or data flow.

- So far, there has been no cooperation between institutions in the international migration data collection
- To get the secunder data on international migration, BPS request to other institution by sending a letter
