

Survey on Violence between Men and Women

Yasuhisa Yamaguchi, Deputy Director

Office for Violence Against Women, Gender Equality Promotion Division, Gender Equality Bureau, Cabinet Office, Japan

Abstract:

The violence against women is a serious human rights abuse, obstructing the achievement of a gender equal society which promotes the construction of a relation of equality between women and men that together respect each other's dignity.

The violence perpetrated by partners, as well as sexual crimes and sexual violence have also been severe social problems in Japan. Given the need to figure out the reality of these violence accurately, the Survey on Violence between Men and Women has been conducted regularly and continuously in Japan.

This presentation will discuss the summary and result of the survey.
