Please select one.

- a) Head of household
- b) Reference person
- c) Other; please describe

Regarding your answer to the previous question, please provide the definition of head of household or reference person that was used in the Census.

b)

Definition:

Based on the reference person, the other people in the household are linked to this person. The household types are also formed depending on the reference person. The assignment of the reference person depends on age, marital status and gender

D. Housing census characteristics

19. Housing information

The general definition applied in this census for housing unit is:

A building for residential purposes is any detached structure or any structure in a group of adjoining structures that are separated by a firewall. As a rule, neighbouring buildings each have their own entrances and staircases. The building has at least one dwelling, regardless of whether it is occupied or vacant.

“Other housing units” includes occupied gazebos, occupied caravans, occupied caravans, occupied mobile homes and similar.

The general definition applied in this census for conventional dwelling is:

A dwelling is defined as rooms that are closed off from the outside, intended for residential purposes and are usually located together which enable the person to run their own household. Dwellings have their own entrance directly from the outside, from a stairwell or a vestibule. However, a dwelling may also include cellar or floor rooms developed for residential purposes (e.g. attics) outside the actual end of the dwelling.

Are vacant units included in the enumerated conventional dwellings?

Yes

The general definition applied in this census for room is:

The number of rooms includes all living rooms, dining rooms and bedrooms and bedrooms and other separate rooms (e.g. habitable cellar and attic rooms) of at least 6 m<sup>2</sup> in size as well as kitchens regardless of their size.
