C. Household characteristics

1. Definitions

General definition of a household for this census is:

Definitions of the three types of households used in the Czech Census:

Dwelling household consists of persons living together in one dwelling.

Housekeeping household consists of persons living together who mentioned at the census questionnaire-housing units that they have common housekeeping, i.e. main costs of the household (food, living costs, operational costs and others) are paid for jointly. Common housekeeping was filled in also by children belonging to the relevant household, although they did not contribute to the costs of the household.

Subtenants and their families always form a separate housekeeping household.

A housekeeping household can be formed of one or more census households.

Census household consists of persons living together in one dwelling on the basis of their kinship or other relationships within one housekeeping household. It is a basic unit that is not further divided.

There are four basic types of census households:

1. family household - complete family (married couple or partners living in a consensual union - so-called marriage de facto - without children or with children);
2. family household - incomplete family (one of parents with at least one child);
3. multi-member non-family household (two or more persons that are related or not, with common housekeeping, who do not form a family household);
4. household of an individual.

Other individuals can be also a part of family households if they have a common housekeeping together with the relevant census family household, they do not form an independent family and/or they are not sub-tenants.

Housekeeping and census households were elaborated for persons living in dwellings and outside dwellings (emergency accommodation), however, not for persons in establishments that did not fill in the census questionnaire-housing units.
