Genève, octobre 1986

LISTE DES PAYS DU MONDE

Au cours de sa cinquisième session (New York, 5-16 mars 1973), le groupe d'experts des Nations Unies pour la normalisation des noms géographiques a décidé d'établir une liste complète des noms des pays du monde dans les langues officielles de ces pays ainsi que dans les langues officielles des Nations Unies. L'établissement de cette liste a été confié à un groupe de travail chargé de recueillir à la fois les formes officielles longues et courtes des noms de pays.

Les formes officielles longues sont systématiquement utilisées dans les actes importants des États : constitution, législation, traités, etc... Les formes officielles courtes sont plus généralement utilisées dans les documents internes des gouvernements et de leurs administrations ; elles tendent, si elles ne le sont pas déjà, à être utilisées dans le langage courant, dans la presse, voire dans les relations internationales.

Les éléments de base du travail ont été relevés dans le Bulletin de terminologie des Nations Unies, notamment pour les pays de langue anglaise ou française. Dans les autres cas, et pour les éléments complémentaires, les informations ont été recueillies auprès des gouvernements par les experts des divisions géographico-linguistiques concernées et les membres du groupe de travail.

Le classement adopté est l'ordre alphabétique des formes courtes en langue anglaise ; toutefois pour faciliter la recherche trois entrées ont été établies : en anglais, en espagnol et en français.

Tout nom de pays composé de plusieurs termes, substantifs, adjectifs ou conjonctions est considéré dans son ensemble comme s'il ne formait qu'un seul nom. Une seule exception a été faite à cette règle pour la République Fédérale d'Allemagne qui a été classée à la lettre G, immédiatement après la République Démocratique Allemande :

German Democratic Republic ; Germany, Federal Republic of, Ces deux États ont toujours été inscrits sur les trois index, l'un à la suite de l'autre, dans l'ordre alphabétique de la langue intéressée.

Certains pays, bien que ne faisant pas partie de l'Organisation des Nations Unies ont été inclus dans la liste.

La fiche de chaque pays est divisée en deux parties. La partie supérieure est réservée strictement aux formes officiellement adoptées par le pays intéressé, la partie inférieure est réservée à la traduction des formes officielles nationales dans les langues officielles de l'Organisation des Nations Unies.

Il ne faut pas s'étonner de rencontrer des traductions qui ne sont pas absolument littérales, chaque langue ayant ses propres règles et ses propres traditions.

Des différences existent aussi dans les conventions d'écriture : ainsi l'adjectif commence en anglais par une majuscule et en français par une minuscule. L'usage du trait d'union est aussi très variable d'une langue à l'autre.

Le lecteur constatera enfin que certains éléments sont manquants : si une note n'indique pas un défaut de documentation, c'est que ces éléments n'existent pas. Tous les pays en effet ne disposent pas à la fois d'une forme longue et d'une forme courte ; le Canada et les Émirats arabes unis par exemple.

Lorsque les caractères de l'alphabet utilisé par un pays ne sont pas latins, de même dans le cas des idéogrammes, chaque forme locale est immédiatement suivie de sa forme transcritée selon le système adopté par le pays. Les règles d'emploi des majuscules et minuscules étant celles adoptées généralement dans les écritures de caractères latins.

Il peut exister quelques discordances de détail entre les formes transcritées de l'arabe telles qu'elles ont été recueillies auprès des pays et telles qu'elles ont été notées en tant que langue officielle des Nations Unies. En effet, dans la partie inférieure de la fiche, la transcrituration a été faite par la division des pays de langue arabe, systématiquement dans le système de Beyrouth amendé.

La transcrituration des idéogrammes a été faite en plinyin, elle se rapporte à la prononciation de ces idéogrammes en langue commune chinoise.

La transcrituration du russe est conforme à la note n° 38 remise par la division d'Union soviétique au cours de la onzième session du Groupe d'experts en 1984 à Genève. Le système utilisé est le COMECON ST n° 1362-78.

La liste a été mise à jour pour le 1^{er} juillet 1986.
