- (1) Minority languages with a very limited use are disregarded.
- (2) The definite article given in brackets is used as a rule if the name occurs in the context of a sentence, but is generally omitted on maps and in lists. The occurrence of the definite article in some special syntactical constructions only has been neglected.
- (3) In cases where the postpositive article never is omitted if the country name occurs on maps or in lists it has not been enclosed within brackets.
