International Merchandise Trade Statistics: Supplement to the Compilers Manual, by UNSD

The primary purpose of the Supplement is to assist United Nations Member States in the implementation of the guidelines adopted by the United Nations Statistical Commission and laid out in International Merchandise Trade Statistics: Concepts and Definitions, Revision 2 (IMTS, Rev.2) and International Merchandise Trade Statistics: Compilers Manual. The Supplement may also serve as a guide to users who wish to understand better the nature of trade data. The Supplement to the Compilers Manual has been prepared by the Trade Statistics Branch of the United Nations Statistics Division (UNSD) with the support of the inter-agency Task Force on International Merchandise Trade Statistics (TFIMTS) as agreed at its 2003 meeting in Geneva, Switzerland.

The electronic version of the draft of the Supplement submitted for editing can be downloaded at: http://unstats.un.org/unsd/trade/imts/imts_default.htm
The meeting of the Task Force on International Merchandise Trade Statistics in Vienna was very important for sharing information and coordinating the work on various issues. The most important topic was the discussion of a draft document for the first round of worldwide consultations on the revision of IMTS, Rev.2. UNSD provided a comprehensive introduction of the revision process and guided the discussions of the 17 topics of the draft consultation document.

Other important discussions concerned the latest developments in IMTS data compilation, dissemination and analysis at the different international organizations such as the changes in the EU Intra- and Extrastat legislation, the development of analytical tools at ITC and OECD and the merging of trade and business statistics.

Additional important topics were the Statistical Data and Metadata eXchange (SDMX) initiative, the Harmonized System (edition 2007) and the forthcoming IMF manual on external trade price indices.

On the last day a joint session with the Task Force on Statistics of International Trade in Services (TFSITS), whose meeting took place in parallel, discussed issues of common interest, actions to be taken and the possibility of joint meetings in the future.

The report of the Task Force meeting is available on the website of the World Trade Organization at: http://imts.wto.org/task_e.htm.

The meeting discussed the revision of the Manual on Statistics of International Trade in Services (SITS) and drafts for the individual chapters of the revised Manual. It was decided to postpone the submission of the revised Manual to the Statistical Commission from 2009 to 2010 in order to allow better coordination with the revision process of the recommendations for international merchandise trade statistics (IMTS, Rev.2). Nevertheless, it was suggested to stay on the same time schedule and to deliver a full draft version of the revised manual early in 2009. At the joint meeting with the Task Force on IMTS (28 March), cross-cutting issues on statistics on international trade in services and merchandise trade statistics were discussed.

YOU HAVE ASKED US:
COUNTRY OF LAST KNOWN DESTINATION

Q: When a country lists "last known destination" as the recipient-country of exports, does that mean that the destination is the country which purchased the goods, or the country where the exporter delivered the goods? For example, if China is shipping an order of computer parts to Germany, but the goods are delivered to Spain and then taken by land to Germany, would China report Germany or Spain as the destination of the computer parts?

A: Extract from International Merchandise Trade Statistics, Concepts and Definitions, Rev.2 (IMTS, Rev.2), paragraph 137: "The country of last known destination is the last country—as far as it is known at the time of exportation—to which goods are to be delivered, irrespective of where they have been initially dispatched to and whether or not, on their way to that last country, they are subject to any commercial transactions or other operations which change their legal status. For instance, if it is known at the time of exportation that goods are to be delivered to country A but have been initially dispatched to a third country (country B) where they are subject to commercial transactions or other operations which change their legal status, that third country (country B) is the country of destination and country A is the country of last known destination."

In the example provided Germany should be reported as the country of last known destination while Spain would be the country of destination. The question of who purchased or owns the goods is as such in most cases not relevant for the attribution of the partner country as international merchandise trade statistics is based on the concept of physical movement of goods and not change of ownership.

Further information on the practical aspects of the identification of the country of last known destination can be found in the IMTS Compilers Manual, paragraph 225-228: http://unstats.un.org/unsd/pubs/gesgrid.asp?mysearch=compilers+manual&=GO
