

HIGHLIGHTS

Launch of the Hangzhou Declaration recommitments the data community to accelerating progress in the implementation of the Cape Town Global Action Plan (CTGAP) for Sustainable Development Data. In addition, the Declaration calls for data and statistical systems to be responsive to the needs of society and representative of everyone in the process, increased domestic and international financing for data and statistics, and the adoption of greater data innovation and new partnerships.

Launch of "A Collaborative on Citizen Data" to promote the systematic collaboration among civil society, national statistical systems, academia and other relevant data producers and users. The Collaborative will provide a space for sharing knowledge, resources and addressing key challenges that were discussed during the UNWDF.

Data4Now initiative, highlighted in Hangzhou declaration as a prime example of how partners are working together at national and international levels to innovate in data and statistics production. National statistical offices lead the work in engaging with key stakeholders from the onset to identify priorities and use innovative approaches to satisfy user needs.

"Data — when used responsibly — is the bedrock of a sustainable future. Let's find new ways to harness and apply this vital resource and shape a better tomorrow for all people." António Guterres, Secretary-General of the United Nations
