October 20 is the World Statistics Day

On October 20, 2010 World Statistics Day is being celebrated for the first time.

October 20 was announced as World Statistics Day pursuant to the resolution # 64/267 of the UN General Assembly in 2010.

This day is celebrated through different activities by UN Statistics Division, UN Regional Offices and National Statistical Offices of 192 Member States.

National Statistics Office of Georgia is also celebrating World Statistics Day through various activities.

National Statistics Office of Georgia has prepared a poster that was sent to the UN Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific, to exhibit it at the special exhibition devoted to the World Statistics Day.

On October 20, 2010 Mr. Zaza Chelidze, Executive director of National Statistics Office of Georgia, awarded special certificates to the best interviewers. In coming days special certificates will also be awarded to the enterprises that are actively cooperating with Geostat.
